I'm trying to think of just which gamelines fit best for Victorian Hong Kong and the answer seems to be literally all of them.

Era we've seen before, but I have a ton of notes for "Vigil For Rome"

Check out my expansion to the Realm of Brass and Shadow

Having thought about this the area that I want to know more about would be Vampires and the move to the new world. This is mostly for the practical side of it (getting over there and getting set up) but I'm one of those people who likes physical books so there's a good chance it would be some time before I buy a copy.

Doubting Souls Era touched on this briefly, but I'm be more than willing to see this great Age of Exploration and all those Old World monsters founding that they are not first to prey on humanity in wilderness parts of world. My Mysterium, Iron Masters and Ordo Dracul researchers would be especially interested in this. Waiting to see those exotic Nameless Orders that mage would try to subdue with their 'Atlantean Rethorics'. Especially as Cherion Group is rumored to set sails earlier to New World than rest of humanity...

Oh, another Vampire/Werewolf idea that's been stewing in my mind: Medici Florentine. Werewolf's packs/gangs conflict maps very well onto the political conflicts of the time as you escalate up the scale, from rival street gangs to feuding noble families and banker clans to rival city-states to the chaotic mess of various rival Popes, etc etc. It's a time of change for the human cultures involved, artistically and politically and governmentally and spiritually; all rich stuff to play off with Werewolf. Vampire fits right in with all that for obvious reasons too. I'd pick a specific event or social current and make it a flashpoint for both types of supernatural. Maybe add some high weirdness - something supernatural and odd going on specifically at this very time that both are struggling to deal with.

I've said it before, and I'll say it again. I'd like to see the Dancing Plague of 1518 (or really, any outbreak of dancing mania) covered in the Chronicles of Darkness. I don't particularly care about which line would get it. Changeling seems like it would be good for the Pied Piper similarities. Hunter would be good for simply having some weirdness to investigate. Hell, even it being the result of Mummy cultist activities could be possible. I see a lot of possibilities with that kind of a setting, and it seems a shame not to do something with it..

Really, if we get French Revolution, I'm hoping that it gets a 10k expansion so that it can be Mage/Mummy/Beast. The Revolution is thematically on point for Beast, but historically it is a bit effing deal for Mage and Mummy. Mage sees conflict for the Seers of the Throne and the Silver Ladder, while for Mummy, it is the biggest rejection of the culture of Irem to date. I'd love to see Beast take on it, but I feel it is too historically important to Mummy and Mage to pass it up.

I'd love to see something with one of the Muslim kingdoms in Iberia, ideally one of the earlier ones and centered around Vampire; you got all the fun of court politics and a religion-heavy society, but from a direction the average reader isn't familiar with. It would be a chance to see some new Covenants (you could get Muslim and Jewish groups in here, plus maybe a declining Gothic group as well) beyond the pretty lazy reskins that were in Ancient Mysteries (which I loved, but come on; "just rename the Lance and Circle and call it a day" really doesn't do it justice), some fun new Bloodlines, and a chance to see formerly-Roman Kindred that fled West instead of East.

You could even tack a Fall of Granada appendix onto it as a stretch goal in the same way that Requiem for Rome did for Byzantium and do vignettes where the characters or their childer react to the Reconquista and die, convert, or flee into North Africa.

I would love to see a Cordoba Umayyad or Emirate of Sicily based era for anyone.

Exactly. You can't tell me Cordoba isn't a hotbed of intrigue that the Kindred would fit right into.

And I'm sure the local Hunters are really interesting! You might even have pesky Christians sneaking in from Asturias to the north.

Beast in Tokyo during the panic surrounding the monster with 21 faces case and the following Oronamin C (the method used the by the poisoner fitting Beast's teaching lessons through fear bit rather well) poisonings in 1984-85, two of the most famous unsolved crimes in Japanese history and theyt did more than anything else, made the Japanese afraid of crime in a way that they hadn't been for years, seems right up Beast's ally.

I can also think of how post soviet Eastern Europe in the 90s fits the themes of several game lines

I'd also love an al-Andalus setting. Although I had thought more a Mage Setting, showig the differences between "christian" and "muslim" versions of the Orders, with Cordoba as one of the greatest Athenaeain and magic centers of knowledge in the world, atracting mages of both East and West, Vampire would be my second option for that setting.

LAND OF THE DAMNED: SPAIN (Spanish): Land of the Damned: Spain, Kingdoms of Blood: Spain; Cities of the Damned: Barcelona, Valencia, Carthian Constitution (1812), Three Arrows Pact:

OTHERS (Spanish): Demon: The Redemption, Bloodlines: The Forgotten

I'm itching for more Vampire settings in general, but Vampire/Mage could be a really fun crossover, especially anywhere that buried elders and buried Mysteries could overlap.

EDIT: And now I'm wondering how you might overlap Atlantis myths with Ubar or Irem, with the obvious Mummy tie-in there...

In fact, one of the theories about the meaning of al-Andalus is that it was "Atlantis". Although I'm not convinced about it, it could be a good Mystery for islamic mages.
